

Senior Data Engineer

Description

We are Leads.io — the world's #1 tech-driven lead generation agency. With a determination to become an ever-better growth catalyst for our clients, we are on the lookout for fresh faces to join our team! Do you have what it takes to join Leads.io?

Key responsibilities:

Leads.io is on the search for a Senior Data Engineer to complement our dynamic work environment. As the Senior Data Engineer, you'll be designing, implementing, and maintaining a greenfield suite of powerful tools to manage large datasets and integrate with multiple data sources. This is an exciting opportunity for someone passionate about building something from the ground up and designing scalable systems. Grow your skills and experience with our rapidly growing company!

Other responsibilities are:

- Design and maintain overall data warehouse architecture, ingesting large volumes of data from multiple sources and making it ready for daily BI analysis and visualization
- Develop ways to make data more accessible to teams through efficient extraction and clear structures
- Identify ways to improve our data models, including finding gaps in reporting, improvements in data assets, and other ways to build data into an even more powerful tool
- Provide technical guidance to IT and BI teams
- Collaborate with stakeholders to understand key data requirements for key departments and build a project plan to support those requirements
- Manage data access needs and requests to empower teams across the organization

Requirements

Your qualifications

- You have 5+ years of experience in data architecture for large organizations, specializing in cloud architecture design, data modeling, ETL /ELT integration, and performance monitoring.
- You are highly proficient in Dataform, dbt, and SQL for building ready-to-access reports and creating efficient data structures.
- You have strong skills in Python for data extraction and transformation.
- You have experience implementing and maintaining BigQuery and Fivetran.
- You are familiar with data modeling for visualization tools like Tableau.
- You have experience working with cloud providers, particularly Google Cloud.
